

Call for Applications:
Public Policy Track of Doctoral Program in Political Science, Central European University
AY 2011-12

We invite applications for the CEU Doctoral Program in Political Science, Public Policy Track, for the Academic Year 2011-2012. The Doctoral Program's Public Policy Track is designed to prepare students for a career in academia and institutions of applied research such as think tanks. It is highly competitive and welcomes applications from graduates of Public Policy, Economics, Political Science, International Relations, Law and related disciplines.

About the Program

The Doctoral Program in Public Policy is a specialized track in CEU's political science PhD program. It is operated by the Doctoral School of Political Science, Public Policy and International Relations. PhD studies comprise coursework and a research phase. Probationary Doctoral Candidates first earn 24 credits over the course of their first two academic years. Course work period focus on the development of professional level research and analytical skills in the fields of training in Public Policy, Public Administration, EU Governance and Public Policy. Course work also entails a comprehensive and rigorous methods training component. After passing the comprehensive examination and successfully defending the Prospectus, PhD Candidates conduct research on their doctoral project. During the research period for their dissertation, students are encouraged to spend time both in the field bit and at another university. Much of the student work in the doctoral program is centered on doctoral student workshops and departmental seminars, where PhD candidates also have the opportunity to get in touch with visiting scholars from the most outstanding European and US universities. As the department's faculty is actively involved in European Union-funded research projects, doctoral candidates gain direct access to academic networks, workshops, conferences in their field, both at CEU and beyond.

Selected Areas of Research

Among other, the Public Policy Track in CEU's Political Science Program welcomes applications in the following research areas:
